

Feng-Ming Tien

• Current position:

- Attending Physician (Hematology),
Department of Internal Medicine, National Taiwan University Hospital.

• Specialty:

- Hematologic malignancies
- Hematopoietic stem cell transplantation
- Genetic analysis for hematologic

malignancies

• Education:

- M.Sc., Graduate Institute of Clinical Medicine, National Taiwan University
- MD., School of Medicine, National Taiwan University

• Career and certification:

- Lecturer, College of Medicine, National Taiwan University
- Attending Physician, Department of Hematologic Oncology, National Taiwan University Cancer Center
- Attending Physician, Tai-Chen stem cell therapy center, National Taiwan University
- Deputy secretary general, the Hematology Society of Taiwan

•Reminder from Dr. Tien

Fever, swelling, itching, sweats, cough, and weight loss are common warning symptoms of hematology diseases. Presence of these symptoms warrants hematology clinic visit. The recent 10 years have witnessed the improvement of treatment for hematology diseases. Life expectancy and quality of life of patients improved dramatically. My ambition is to provide personalized treatment to patients by incorporating relevant genetic analysis.