• Reminder from Dr. Lin:

We are in the digital age full of different information, parents and children face more and more challenge in such time of knowledge explosion. Parents are worried about developmental delay in toddlerhood, and then academic performance and peer relationship after their children attended schools. Persistent stress may result in emotional impairment.

There are many information on the internet but not actually fit everyone's condition. If you are suffered from mental disorder which caused daily life disturbance, you should visit the psychiatrist for further evaluation.
