

Kuo-Wei Chen

• Current position:

- Visiting Staff (Neurosurgery), Department of Surgery, National Taiwan University Hospital

• Specialty:

- Neurosurgery
- Neurosurgical intervention
- Cerebral aneurysm

- Arteriovenous malformation
- Cerebrovascular stenosis
- Cerebral hemorrhage
- Stroke

• Education:

- Master degree of Public Health Program, College of Public Health, National Taiwan University
- MD, School of Medicine, National Taiwan University.

• Career and certification:

- Visiting Staff, Department of Surgery, NTUH
- Visiting Staff, Department of Surgery, NTUH Hsin-Chu Branch
- Visiting Staff, Department of Traumatology, NTUH
- Chief Resident, Department of Surgery,

NTUH

•Reminder from Dr. Chen:

Stroke causes severe disability and adds a burden to families. Cerebrovascular anomalies, such as cerebral aneurysms and cerebrovascular stenosis, can be discovered early and treated before disability occurs. With the advancement of medical technology, many cases can be treated with minimally invasive interventions, leading to early patient recovery.